

Introduction to the Vancouver referencing system

DR JEAN-MICHEL SAADÉ

What is Vancouver referencing system?

- Citations in the body of the text ("in-text citations"), using consecutive numbers in brackets.
- superscripted numbers or numbers in parentheses.
- Numbered references in a list called bibliography at the end of the text

In-text citations

- 1- Write the idea that you are quoting (direct or indirect quotation)
- 2- Place the number of the reference near the idea.
- 3- If it's a new reference you give it a new number
- 4- If it's a reference you already used , you use the same number.
- 5- At the end of the document you put a list of references:

Containing the number then the source

Some general rules:

1. Authors
2. Titles
3. Exercise :Articles
4. Exercise :Books
5. Webography

Authors

- List names in the order they appear on the publication
- Initials follow the surname of authors, no spaces or full-stops appear between initials-eg. Smith CK
- Capitalize surnames and enter spaces as they appear on the publication. For example, Van Den Hoffer or van der Hoffer
- Where there are 6 or fewer authors, list all author names.
- Where there are 7 or more authors, list the first six authors followed by "et al."
- Place a comma and space between each name.
- Do not use "and" or "&" to separate the last two authors.

et collaborateurs

10

Title

- No italicization of titles
- No underlining of titles
- Only the first word of journal articles and book titles (and words that normally begin with a capital letter) are capitalized.

Book

- year of publication = the last element in the reference.
- Include the edition number, "2nd ed", "4thed", + End with a full-stop.
- The place of publication appears after the title (and edition if included) and is followed by a colon. If the place of publication is not well known, include a state or country abbreviation.
- Include the publisher after the place of publication, follow with a semi-colon.
- ebooks – include "Available from:" followed by the URL as the last element of the reference.

Every type of publication has its way of being referenced according to the Vancouver referencing system

You should consult:

The Vancouver referencing guide

The instruction to the authors (from the journal where you intend to publish)

Verify if you decide to use a software because sometimes some errors might occur from the software
